

Oh the Places You'll Go!

Architects serving St. Louis through design and literacy

Architects, here's your chance to show off your design skills while promoting literacy and fostering community building in St. Louis. We're partnering with the St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department to distribute little libraries that you design and build to high-need areas throughout the city. These libraries will promote literacy and renewed relationships between the police officers and their communities. The Little Free Library organization will get your plans to distribute to bookworms who want to build their own little library.

The Event

Come to SPACE to see the libraries, vote for the People's Choice winner, and enjoy food and drink while listening to tunes from DJ Mahf.

How does it work?

- Get your team together and register at Eventbrite: <https://www.eventbrite.com/e/oh-the-places-youll-go-tickets-16060292768> We'll email you the official rules as soon as you register. The $50 registration fee covers your official Little Free Library charter number. Firms can submit multiple entries, but you must register for each library.
- Design and build your little library masterpiece! The cost of materials cannot exceed $100. While you're at it, make a list of materials and instructions for assembly.
- Drop off your library at our studio on April 29th, and email your materials list and assembly instructions by April 30th.
- On May 1, we'll open our doors to the community so everyone can see your handiwork. A panel of judges will name a winner, and the guests will select a "People's Choice" winner. The kickoff party will feature literary-themed food, drinks and tunes from DJ Mahf. The libraries will be on display through the end of May.
- At the end of the month, the libraries will be turned over to the St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department. The officers will place the the libraries throughout the city to promote literacy and community engagement with the people the officers serve. Your library plans, meanwhile, will be given to the Little Free Library organization for distribution to bookworms who want to recreate your little library masterpiece.

Please visit the Eventbrite page for more details, or email shelley@spacestl.com with any questions. Even if you don't participate, come to see the little libraries. The more the merrier!
